Mixed acrylic paints; using paints such as Liquitex Basics or Amsterdam. Golden Fluid acrylics and Golden High Flow acrylics are not suitable as the ratios of paint to pouring medium are quite different. Please bring jars or bottles of your paint already mixed with your pouring medium. Do not mix silicone oil into your pre-mixed paint. Make sure you have lots of white, a dark, and a variety of your favorite colors. Bring your pouring medium, Fluotrol, or your own mixture, just in case you need to mix more.

Treadmill silicone, available in the sporting goods department of Canadian Tire. Sold in a 3 pack, you can split with other people if you like.

You will also need:

- because this can get messy, we are going to do our pours on aluminum baking sheets like you get at the dollar store, with metal cookie racks, so bring about 4 of each.
- shallow Rubbermaid type bins – to transport your work home (art will sit on the metal racks then can be placed in the bin). Make sure you have enough bins for how many canvases you want to do.
- disposable plastic gloves, suggest about 4 pairs
- 20 - 10oz (300ml) Clear plastic cups for mixing paint
- green painters tape
- wax paper
- plastic push pins
- package of long wooden stir sticks
- 25ml measure that you will only use for paint
- small garbage can with bag to sit beside you
- several small canvases in a variety of sizes, 4x6, 5x7, 6x8, 8x8, 8x10, regular or gallery wrapped. I do not recommend canvas boards as they can warp. Masonite boards work as long as they are gessoed. Dollarama has cheap small canvases, but they are not the best quality.
- if you are using boards to pour on you need them to sit on something to raise them up, you can use the plastic shotglasses from Dollarama
- roll of paper towel
- hairdryer
- small blowtorch or heatgun (optional)
- BAG LUNCH
